I-FIT Exercise Science for Fitness Professionals: 3000/-

This course includes the study of how the body responds to exercise and how to use that knowledge to improve performance and reduce the risk of injury: It is the study of how the body adapts to the physical and mental demands of exercise. Exercise science includes areas of study such as human anatomy, biomechanics and physiology.

If you would like a long career in the fitness industry and your desire is to be a great Personal Trainer, Group Fitness Instructor or Gym Instructor, then you must be able to provide your clients with results. The better their results, the more people will want you as their instructor or trainer. Having a thorough understanding of the sciences makes this possible. It enables you to create exercise programs for specific fitness goals that are based around the ability of the client.
